Terms and Conditions:

Hour's. Normal hours will be 7.30pm until midnight unless otherwise specified in advance. Load-in will be affected one hour before music-start, again unless other prior arrangements have been agreed with all parties. Hours outside these base hours will be charged separately from the main fee if and when required by the client unless this stipulation has been waived by agreement in advance.

Fees. Fees should be paid in full, in cash on the night, before commencement of the booking, together with the agreed fees as above. Alternatively, cheque payments should be made seven working days in advance of the booking. Deposits are non refundable in case of cancellation.

Cancellation. Cancellation is possible apart from the surrender of the deposit at any time up until ninety days prior to the engagement. If cancellation occurs within sixty days of the engagement then full payment is due and ninety days to sixty-one days half payment is due. Unless specified or discontinued after the function has already commenced, whether voluntarily or otherwise, payment in full is required.

Food. Food and drinks should be provided if the DJ is working at the function for six hours or more.

Requests. Disc jockeys will endeavour to play all tracks requested by the client, and guests at the function. However, in case of hard to locate, rare, deleted or unusual requests the client would be advised to supply in advance a list of these tracks numbering no more than twenty five in order to allow time for these items to be located. In the case of inappropriate requests they will only be played at the discretion of the DJ on the night.

Extension of time. We reserve the right to limit service to the hours contracted in advance. Clients may, however with the express consent of the manager of the facilities in which the event is held, and the DJ's time permitting, request an on-site extension. Such an extension will be at the sole discretion of the performer and subject to an overtime payment.

Recordings. We do not provide recordings of DJ performances, compilations of copy-righted material such as musical or Karaoke tracks. Please contact your local music retailer to obtain a copy of the music in question.

Previews of service. Unfortunately we are unable to allow clients to preview our services by attending or visiting an event at which we are entertaining. Most of the events at which we entertain are private and we are at the time under the employ of the event sponsor. It is therefore inappropriate for us to use the event as a sales tool. That said, most of our work come as a result of recommendation and the DJ will be happy to supply business cards when requested at any function.

Substitution. We will endeavour to supply the DJ of the clients choosing where specified but reserve the right to substitute personnel of the same standard if the preferred performer is unavailable or otherwise engaged.

Space. An area of around three metres wide and two metres deep is required to set up DJ equipment. Please ensure that there is at least this amount of space. It is not possible to set up in one position and move partway through the evening in view of the time it takes breaking down and setting up. Where the DJ sets up at the start of the function there he/she will remain.

Dress. Disc jockeys attempt to reflect the dress code of the evening. Thus, he will wear a bow tie and dinner jacket at a black-tie event or a Wedding, an Hawaiian shirt at a beach party and so forth. However we can only do this if informed of the specific nature of the event and we rely on clients to tell us if there is a particular themed dress code for an event.

Power. It goes without saying that we need access to a minimum of two electrical sockets of the standard type. If we are going to be some distance away from the nearest power point, then please inform us in advance so necessary extensions will be brought to the venue.
